BACKGROUND

The Bureau for Private Postsecondary Education originally received an application for an Approval to Operate an Institution Non-Accredited from institution owner, James Petula on October 14, 2010. The institution name on the application was Mentor Apprentice School of the Arts. During the course of the review process of the application the Bureau received a request to change the name on the application to Recording Radio and Film Connection. The Bureau received multiple complaints regarding the business. During the course of the investigation the Bureau found that the Institution was operating and advertising under various business names. The advertised names include: Mentor Apprentice School of the Arts; Recording Radio Film Connection, Inc.; Recording Connection Audio Institute; Broadcast Connection; Career Connection; Culinary Connection Culinary Arts Academy; Entertainment Career Connection; film Connection film Institute; Film 7 TV Connection; Learn in Los Angeles Film School/Program; Mentor Apprentice School of the Arts, Entertainment Connection, Inc.; Radio and Recording Connection; Radio Connection Broadcasting School/Institute; Radio Recording, Television & Film Connection; Recording Audio Institute; Recording Connection; Recording Connection Audio Institute/School; and San Francisco Recording Connection.

On May 22, 2013 the Bureau issued a citation to Recording Radio Film and Culinary Connection for operating an unapproved institution. This citation was subsequently withdrawn after an informal office conference between the Bureau and the Institution. In addition in August 2013 the Institution's application for approval to operate was denied. The institution appealed the denial but ultimately withdrew their appeal and submitted a new application for Approval to Operate an Institution Non-Accredited under the name Radio Recording Film and Culinary Connection. This application was also denied.

Through the investigation, the Bureau has discovered that the Institution continues to advertise, enroll new students and operate despite not having an approval to operate from the Bureau.
