The following information is provided in keeping with requirements established by the Bureau for Private Postsecondary Education of the State of California:

Completion rates: The completion rate* for students at California Christian College rarely drops below 100%.

Placement rates: Programs at California Christian College are not designed to prepare students for one specific career, occupation, job, or job title. Some graduates enter full-time Christian ministry. Others continue their education in graduate school. Some use their Christian training to make an impact in careers in the larger workforce.

License examination passage rates: Programs at California Christian College do not prepare students for specific (state) licensing exams.

Salary/Wage information: No attempt is made to track salary/wage information for graduates of California Christian College. In many ways, such data would contradict the mission and purpose of the institution. The nature of the degrees offered often results in graduates serving in volunteer capacities in church/parachurch ministries or functioning bi-vocationally in both the ministry and the marketplace. The salaries of graduates who do enter full-time Christian ministry vary so widely that no meaningful figure can be determined.

For documentation or additional data to support the information provided above, interested parties may contact the Registrar's Office at California Christian College.
